An enjoyable loop in a central but rarely visited part of Dili. Mt Fatocama isn't a notable summit, but represents the highest point of this relatively straightforward (by Timor standards) hike up into the eucalyptus covered hills behind the city. You'll see village life on the outskirts of Dili, walk up a dry river bed, visit a scenically located cemetery and church, and be treated to great views of the city below. .

Difficulty rationale – Decent climb, but track is generally one of the easier ones in the hills, and returns down a 4WD track
